

Hello, my name is Preah. The question I was _____ (asked / ask) was, what do you think is the _____ (more / most) difficult language to learn?

And as you probably _____ (knew / know), English is the most difficult to learn, and that is _____ (coming / came) from an English teacher. Okay, now, why do I _____ (said / say) this? I know how to speak _____ (four / for) languages: English, Spanish, Creole, _____ (which / where) is my native language, my _____ (country's / countries) native language, patois is English, patois, as well as American, I'm just _____ (kids / kidding). American isn't a language. But yeah, I know _____ (what / how) to speak English, Spanish, and _____ (what / who) we call Creole. But why do I say English? It's _____ (because / below) there's a lot of terms. There's a lot of different _____ (tenses / tense). There's a lot of words that _____ (mean / meaning) one thing, but it's _____ (pronounce / pronounced) a different way. There's a lot of letters that are silent in _____ (word / words). There's a lot of different pronunciations for _____ (letter / letters), and it's also very different than what other _____ (countries / country's) or other languages are _____ (use / used) to. So that is why I _____ (won't / would) say English is the most _____ (difficulty / difficult).
