Hello, my _____ (name / names) is Preah, and I am from Belize. My question is, what was your most _____ (embarrassed / embarrassing) moment?

So when I was 18 years old, I _____ (decided / decide) that I wanted to move to Mexico. I was an adult, and I _____ (felt / feel) like I could do anything I wanted. I also _____ (taught / thought) that I knew Spanish, but I _____ (quickly / quick) learned that I didn't know as _____ (much / many) as I thought. So I was at this mall and _____ (there / they're) was this man. He was doing a _____ (play / played), and he wanted to _____ (invited / invite) me on stage as a part of his play.

And I kept _____ (yelling / telling) him in Spanish, "Soy embarazado. Soy embarazado."

And I thought that I was _____ (playing / saying), "I'm embarrassed" because "embarazado - embarrassed" I thought they _____ (meant / means) the same thing.

And he kept _____ (tells / telling) me, "congratulations, congratulations."

And I was _____ (like / likes), "no, soy embarazado."

And he _____ (keep / kept) saying, "congratulations, boy or girl?"

And I _____ (were / was) like, "I am a girl," I told _____ (her / him).

It wasn't until afterwards I _____ (realize / realized), or I learned that "embarazado" or "embarazada" meant pregnant and _____ (embarrassing / embarrassed), what I actually wanted to say, _____ (meant / meaning) "avergonzado," right?

So that was pretty _____ (embarrassed / embarrassing) because everyone thought that I was _____ (pregnancy / pregnant), but I actually wanted to _____ (said / say) that I was embarrassed.
