

Hi everyone. My name is Ummi and I'm from Malaysia. So my question is, is marriage becoming _____ (outdated / outdate)?

This is a really a _____ (big / beg) question, because a _____ (lot / let) of people, a lot of my friends, in my age, _____ (over / around) my age, they are _____ (getting / gotten) married a lot. And I don't think it's _____ (someone / something) that's becoming _____ (outdated / outdate). I think the only thing that's _____ (probably / probable) part of marriage process itself, like _____ (cultural / cultures) and _____ (traditions / traditional), they are becoming a bit outdated itself, because in a lot of cultures _____ (marriage / marry) is something big and people just tend to _____ (imagine / imagination) that it has to be something big, or _____ (somewhere / something) expensive, which is not true. It's up to the individual _____ (itself / myself), they have the choice on how they want their _____ (wedded / wedding) to be, so it doesn't have to follow _____ (certain / curtain) guidelines or certain _____ (society / societal) expectations to that. So yeah, marriage is not _____ (becoming / becomes) outdated, the only thing that's becoming outdated _____ (on / in) marriage itself is just the culture and _____ (traditional / tradition) that's not rationally set up by the _____ (society / societal).
