

Hello, everyone. My name is Gian, and I'm from Brazil. And my question right now is what are some tips to learning a language?

Well, I am _____ (fluent / fluency) in three _____ (language / languages). Portuguese from Brazil, English, and Italian. Also, we speak _____ (advance / advancement) level French and Spanish. And I know _____ (basically / basics) in Mandarin, Chinese and German as well. I would love to _____ (learn / learning) Russian and Arabic one day as _____ (will / well). So I love languages. I think languages are _____ (such / so) a beautiful way to _____ (understand / understanding) more of a culture, and also just expand your _____ (internalize / internal) vocabulary and universe. My best tips will be, _____ (definitely / definition) be in contact with the language as much as _____ (possibly / possible).

If you don't have the _____ (opportunistic / opportunity) to travel to the country that speak that language, just do classes, lessons, try to talk to _____ (natural / native) people, watch films, games, and _____ (practice / practical) as much, either with classes or apps or anything you have at your _____ (dispose / disposal). And of course, the number one thing would be to just _____ (travel / traveller) to a country, and immerse yourself _____ (their / there). Best, if no one _____ (speaking / speaks) any language that you know. So you were forced to _____ (communication / communicate) in that language. It's _____ (scared / scary) at first, but I promise you, it will pay _____ (off / up). All right, guys. I'll see you _____ (guys / guy) next time.
